Dear Millstone Families,

As you know, my first school day as Superintendent was greeted with a bus accident that involved several of our high school students returning home from Allentown. That certainly added some excitement to the day, to say the least! Thankfully, no one was seriously injured on the bus or in the other vehicle. It's also important to note how impressively our local first responders and transportation department handled the incident. It's reassuring to know that we are in good hands when crises present themselves.

Aside from this unfortunate event, opening day appeared to be a resounding success. As I circulated through our three buildings the students appeared to be genuinely excited and happy. I witnessed energetic adults greeting and assisting the students as they were dropped off or exited their buses. I was able to see the fruits of the staff's labor evident in the condition of the buildings and the decor of the classrooms. And most importantly, I saw and heard the abundance of energy and enthusiasm in your children. There's truly nothing like the atmosphere of a school on the students' first day back.

Today, over 1,100 students returned for their second day ready to get to work. While not as electric as day one, the buildings remain filled with optimism, excitement, and smiling faces. Our dedicated staff have begun making their lasting impressions and igniting a passion for learning which will extend long beyond this year's 180 days of school. There's no doubt that the end of summer is upon us and the beginning of an exciting school year has begun.

I hope your children enjoyed their first day, was excited to meet their teachers, see their friends, and start this new journey. And I thank you for entrusting us with your most prized possessions. Have a great weekend.
